Women’s Peace and Humanitarian Fund
Call for Proposal

Template – Call for Proposals Regular Funding Cycle

Call Opens: 29 January 2021
Deadline for Submissions: 12 March 2021 (6 weeks)

1. About the Women’s Peace and Humanitarian Fund (WPHF)

Composed of representatives from donors, United Nations entities, and civil society organizations, the WPHF is a global pooled funding mechanism which aims to re-energize action and stimulate a significant increase in financing for women’s participation, leadership, and empowerment in peace and security processes and humanitarian response. The WPHF is a flexible and rapid financing mechanism. It supports quality interventions designed to enhance the capacity of local women to prevent conflict, respond to crises and emergencies, and seize key peacebuilding opportunities.

The WPHF breaks silos between humanitarian, peace, security, and development finance by investing in enhancing women’s engagement, leadership, and empowerment across all phases of crisis, peace and security, and development. It addresses structural funding gaps for women’s participation in key phases of crisis, peace and security, and development by improving the timeliness, predictability and flexibility of international assistance. Notably, it will ensure a timely investment in conflict prevention after receipt of early warning signals from women and will accelerate the dispersal of development assistance after successful peace negotiations. It recognizes that peace cannot be created nor sustained without investment in civil society organizations. Therefore, the WPHF invests in strengthening civil society organizations, particularly in grassroots women’s organizations, with the required financial and technical support.

The overall goal of the WPHF’s theory of change is to contribute to peaceful and gender equal societies. Achievement of this goal will require that women are empowered to participate in, contribute to, and benefit from conflict prevention, crisis response, peacebuilding, and recovery. Since its launch in 2016, WPHF has been supporting over 200 civil society organizations and is present in 20 countries or group of countries.

The WPHF is governed by a Funding Board at the global level, which is comprised of four UN entities (currently UN Women, UNDP, UNFPA and PBSO), four donor Member States (currently Germany, the Netherlands, the European Commission and Canada), as well as 4 Civil Society Organizations (currently International Civil Society Action Network on women’s rights, peace and security (ICAN), Global Partnership for the Prevention of Armed Conflict (GPPAC), Transitional Justice Institute and Women Enabled International).

UN Women acts as the WPHF’s Technical Secretariat at the global level. UN Women also acts as the Management Entity for civil society organizations where UN Women has a country presence.
2. About the Action Network on Forced Displacement

The “Action Network on Forced Displacement – Women as Agents of Change” was established in October 2020 by the German Development Cooperation. It aims to increase the visibility of women and girls by giving them a voice as actors in situations of forced displacement and strengthening their rights as well as their economic and social participation. The Action Network brings together women and girls as well as men and boys who are actively engaged with displaced women and girls. This includes decision-makers from political, economic and social spheres, activists and displaced women and girls themselves, who are implementing projects in crisis and conflict settings. The Action Network aims to identify effective good practices for strengthening the political and economic participation and improving the psychosocial health of displaced women and girls. Members of the Action Network will convene regularly to discuss good practices and develop recommendations for policymakers, civil society and local actors. The Action Network seeks to develop recommendations to inform national and international processes and the implementation of the Global Compact on Refugees. This Call for Proposal will be linked to the “Action Network on Forced Displacement – Women as Agents of Change” supported by the German Development Cooperation and grantees will be invited to participate in relevant network activities.

3. Nature and scope of the Call for Proposals

The WPHF will fund qualifying projects in Nigeria. The projects must focus on one country. Multi-country projects will NOT be accepted.

In 2019, 79.5 million people globally were forced to flee from their homes – the highest number on record by UNHCR. Among them are 26 million refugees, 24.7 million internally displaced people (IDPs), 4.7 million asylum seekers as well as 3.6 million other displaced people. Nigeria has been faced by a series of migratory crises caused by insurgency, conflict and environmental disasters. According to UNHCR, over 2.3 million people were forcibly displaced in Nigeria in 2019, among them about 2.2 million internally displaced people. Violent attacks by Boko Haram have spilled over frontiers and neighboring countries have been drawn into the conflict. The northeast crisis, mainly in the states of Borno, Adamawa and Yobe (BAY) has been predicted to relentlessly persist in 2021, severely affecting millions of people and subjecting them to displacement (new or continued), impoverishment as well as threats of violence.\(^1\) Prospects for displaced people’s safe return to their areas of origin are dim and the root causes of the crisis such as widespread poverty, socio-economic and gender inequalities, marginalization and governance deficits remain largely unaddressed. The crisis has also exacerbated pre-existing, persistent gender and social inequalities as well as discrimination related to socio-cultural practices. The inadequate inclusion of women’s and girls’ perspectives in policymaking and decisions, resource allocation as well as project implementation in economic and social sectors continues to challenge the advancement of gender equality.

Furthermore, agitations in the Niger Delta region, inter-communal and farmer-herder clashes in the north-central and middle-belt areas and armed banditry in the northwest have also contributed to recent forced displacement of people, particularly of women and girls. In addition to the three most affected BAY States, Taraba State, which borders Adamawa, has also been greatly affected by the spillover of the Boko Haram violent conflict and by the farmer-herder crisis. Moreover, conflict in neighboring Cameroon has triggered the movement of Cameroonian refugees into nearby states in Nigeria such as Cross River State; just as Nigerian refugees continue to return to Nigeria from Cameroon and Niger due to insecurity and poor living conditions. Some 6,038 Nigerian refugees crossed international borders into IDP camps in 2020.

Women and girls who live in camps or host communities are among the most vulnerable displaced people. Their right to participate in political and economic decision-making is undermined by social, cultural and legal barriers, their lack of familiarity with their new environments, psychosocial stress caused by traumatic experiences, economic deprivation and lack of decent livelihood opportunities. Crisis and conflict contexts increase displaced women’s and girls’ risk of violence due to the breakdown of social structures, lack of law enforcement and prevalence of harmful gender norms and practices. Conflict-induced poverty and food insecurities further exasperate the plight of displaced women and girls and the fragile security context makes it challenging to provide adequate humanitarian services.

The international community often perceives displaced women and girls as victims and survivors of violence – frequently of sexual violence and abuse. While women face additional risks and challenges because of their sex, women’s and girls’ resilience is often overlooked, especially in times of crises. Displaced women and girls secure the survival of their families and their communities with great strength and responsibility, frequently overcome difficult situations and regain control of their lives. Many displaced women and girls are resilient and empowered actors and their participation in social, economic and political decision-making is a crucial prerequisite to building peace and gender-responsive recovery in Nigeria and globally.

In response to this, the focus of this WPHF Call for Proposals will be on local civil society organizations that promote the social, political and economic empowerment of forcibly displaced women and girls (e.g., refugees, internally displaced people, asylum seekers, returnees) in crisis and conflict contexts. Suggested priority topics for projects are listed in Appendix 1. Special attention will be provided to applications supporting displaced women and girls facing multiple and intersecting forms of discrimination, such as those marginalized and excluded due to poverty, ethnicity, disability, age, geography, migratory status, and HIV status, which is in clear alignment with the 2030 Agenda and the principle of leaving no one behind.

The proposal submitted must be aligned to the impact statements of the respective WPHF funding stream that the organization chooses to apply to:

- Programmatic funding stream (WPHF impact area 6) to promote improved socio-economic recovery and political participation of women and girls in peacebuilding contexts.
- Institutional funding stream (WPHF impact area 1) to reinforce the institutional capacity of civil society organizations working on women and girls in forced displacement.

4. Duration of Grants

   All civil society organizations can apply for a maximum of 2-year grants.

5. Location

   Projects should be implemented in the following location(s): Affected local government areas in Borno, Adamawa, Yobe, Taraba and Cross River States in Nigeria. All or some of the states will be considered.

6. Size of grants

   The WPHF will grant around 1,25 million USD over two years to Nigeria. Requested funds from WPHF in project proposals should be between 2,500 USD and no more than 200,000 USD.

7. Funding streams and amounts

   The Call for Proposals aims at responding to the needs of local women’s organizations in fragile settings, with two (2) funding streams:

   Funding stream 1: Institutional funding from 2,500 USD to 30,000 USD

   This funding stream will provide institutional funding to local civil society organizations working with women and girls in forced displacement, to ensure they are able to reinforce their institutional capacities. Prospective applicants will need to demonstrate experience working with forcibly displaced women and girls and how the funding would support them to build their internal capacities. It will aim at financing a limited range of activities to support the development or strengthening of a CSO’s institutional capacity, aligned with the WPHF Impact Area 1. The purpose of this funding stream IS NOT to finance the delivery of programmatic activities.

   Funding stream 2: Programmatic funding from 30,000 USD to 200,000 USD

   This funding stream will finance projects which implement programmatic activities aligned with the WPHF Impact Area 6.

   An organization can only apply one time - either to one or to both streams. Organizations who apply to both streams will need to submit two application packages based on the requirements and templates of each stream.

Eligibility, Application, and Selection Process
